Philippine Commissioner Roberto Eugenio Cadiz

Commissioner Roberto Eugenio T. Cadiz is the Philippine's focal commissioner for Business and Human Rights; Environment; International Humanitarian Law; Peace; and Sustainable Development Goals at the Commission on Human Rights (CHR).

Since 2007, Commissioner Cadiz has managed projects funded by the USAID International Foundation for Electoral Systems, and the United Nations Development Programme. These projects also involved government agencies, such as the Supreme Court of the Philippines, Department of Education, and the CHR.

He has counselled in judicial-reform and public interest cases. He was also one of the private prosecutors in the impeachment case against former Supreme Court Chief Justice Renato Corona. His affiliations related to his advocacies include Pera't Pulitika, Transparency and Accountability Network, and Supreme Court Appointments Watch.

Currently, Commissioner Cadiz oversees the Commission's Center for Crisis, Conflict, and Humanitarian Rights, as well as the Human Rights Education and Promotion.
